

Patrick COMNINOS

Born in Athens, Greece, Patrick has studied International Relations at Georgetown University, in Washington D.C., followed by an LL.B/LL.M in Law at University College London, in the United Kingdom.

His sport professional career started in 1999 when he was appointed Director of Football for the 2004 Summer Olympics in Athens. He then became CEO of the Hellenic Football Federation and the Greek Superleague, before moving to Switzerland in 2012 to work for UEFA as Head of Club Operations.

With more than 20 years in the sport industry, Patrick was appointed as CEO of the newly created Basketball Champions League in 2016. Since then, he managed to develop the competition into one of the fastest growing sport properties in Europe.